After the passing away of his wife, Sheila, and child, Sagar (Govinda) takes to drinking as well as singing and dancing at weddings and special occasions. Intoxicated heavily after one such event, he comes across a child along the roadside, takes a liking for him and brings him home. He names him Raja as he does not know his real name. He subsequently comes to know that the child is deaf-mute since birth and decides to adopt him. He tries to get information out of him but does not understand anything.

Raja's mother has been brutally murdered. Sagar takes Raja out to fairs and adventures and it's during one such outing, Raja sees a person and tries to tell Sagar that he is the one who murdered his mother. Slowly Sagar understands the tale of the story. Meanwhile Sagar meets a girl Sapna (Neelam) and the two fall in love. Sapna takes them to her house where Raja sees a picture of Sapna, her father and shockingly his mother. Sagar wants to unfold the mystery of Raja's incident. As he is looking for clues, he gets arrested. Sagar's life turns upside down when a wealthy businessman, Kailash Nath (Anupam Kher), files a police complaint alleging that Raja is his grandson, and Sagar may have abducted and killed Raja's mom. Tortured and held in a cell, Sagar does not know that Raja's life is in danger by killer(s) who believe Raja saw them commit the murder. Sagar escapes from the jail to un-ravel the murder mystery.

Hatya is an experience, through the eyes of a child. A spine-chilling musical thriller, the film is about the turmoil of a deaf and dumb child, who witnesses a murder along with his mother, and is left alone after the mother is also killed.

Cast - Govinda, Neelam and Anupam Kher.
